

ABOUT US

The Economy and Finance is the professional and scientific journal of the Hungarian Banking Association.

We are convinced that the economy and the financial sector are interdependent; the success of one pulls the other along with it, and failure pulls the other down with it. That is why it is particularly important to publish studies and research on these two areas in a joint professional journal. Our aim is to publish high quality studies on finance, banks, banking systems, macroeconomics, and economic policy in both domestic and international contexts. The publication and funding of the journal also reflects the social responsibility of the banking sector, which includes supporting the publication of academic papers related to finance/banking systems and economic policy. Accordingly, the journal does not charge authors for submitting or publishing an article in Economy and Finance.

The journal is published four times a year in Hungarian and English; in print and electronic form in Hungarian and in electronic form only in English. The electronic form is based on the gold open access principle and is therefore accessible to anyone free of charge. We look forward to providing readers with exciting and interesting, stimulating, and thought-provoking studies. Feedback is always welcome. The main aim of our journal is to provide useful sources of information for both academics and practitioners.
